READ Luke 21.25-36

This passage comes just before Jesus is arrested. The religious leaders are trying to catch Jesus out and to get him into arguments. It seems a very dark and difficult time, but there are small signs of hope. And there is encouragement in difficult times to stand up, look up and look for hope.

A note on the passage: -

Often in difficult times, we may only be able to see the challenges and they may seem so big that we may not always see the small signs of hope. This passage encourages us to look upward with hope. How might we spot the small signs of hope in the dark and difficult times?

. The artist writes: 'It takes a lot of courage to show yourself, to open your own cage, and let your soul be free!' – how is this a hopeful image?

Welcome to

Mrs Tina Gittings

At the beginning of each day, ask yourself two questions: What am I most looking forward to today? What is my hope for today? Then, at the end of the day, ask yourself three questions: What did I most enjoy today? Did I learn anything new today – about myself, someone else, something I never knew? Did my hope happen or come true, or did something else give hope that I wasn't expecting? Take time each day to thank God for the good things that happen, and to pray for your hopes.
