Read Matthew 5.21-37

Jesus expands on laws about murder, adultery, divorce and oaths by challenging his hearers to think beyond their actions and words to the motivations that led to them. Keeping the law is meaningless if the attitude of your heart betrays you, he explains.

A note on the passage.

This passage is not trying to heap more rules and laws onto us but, rather, encourages us to examine our interior attitudes and choices. We are challenged to consider whether our actions and our thoughts are in line with what we say we believe.

If no one knows or sees or even benefits when you do the right things, are they still worth doing?

What does ‘integrity’ actually mean? Look in a dictionary and make a list of all its different meanings. When you are watching, reading or listening to the news this week, look out for people who display integrity. Thank God for everyone you see who behaves in this way. If possible, why not write to them to thank them for behaving with integrity. Look out, also, for those who don’t behave with integrity and pray for them (and write to them too if you are feeling brave!).

The Lectio 365 Daily Prayer app includes an evening prayer which asks God to ‘shine a light on the shadows of my motivations’. At the end of each day, use this brief prayer to help you examine your day and ask yourself ‘Why?’ Why did I say that? Why did I do that? How could I do it differently next time? What is worth doing again? How would Jesus have acted? Allow your answers to lead you into confession and prayer.
